

MOORESVILLE POST OFFICE

When you visit Alabama's most famous post office at Mooresville, you don't have to worry about watching for traffic lights, slipping on steep steps or remembering combinations to tightly-locked metal call boxes.

Reason: There aren't any. Set between two thriving cities, Decatur and Huntsville, Mooresville is a pocket of tradition featuring ante-bellum mansions, quaint cottages and the original post office which has served one of Alabama's oldest incorporated towns for almost 150 years.

North Alabama pioneers took rough-hewn timbers and built their own post office. Many of their descendants still pick up mail from the same wooden boxes used by the first residents who rented them. Chartered in 1818, Mooresville has boasted many famous residents including Thomas Bibb, second governor of Alabama.

Bibb built Belle Mina, one of Mooresville's handsome homes. In 1826, its massive columns have centers of enduring poplar logs.

Two other town landmarks are Leftwich House and McCrary House. Built in 1840, the McCrary mansion has an outside kitchen and a log smokehouse. Once a general store, the two-story Leftwich was reconstructed in the 1940's.

Mooresville also has many smaller cottages and several famous churches. Most of the cottages look much as they did a century ago.

General James A. Garfield preached several sermons in one of the town's white framed churches during the War Between the States. He later became the 20th President of the United States. Visitors can see Garfield's Bible inside the church, which was the first Church of Christ established in Alabama. Mooresville's Methodist Church, built about 1850, has a separate gallery once used by slaves.

Mooresville, a delightful page from the past.

Poison Is Available In Every Alabama Household

The average Alabama home contains enough unlabeled poison to kill an entire family!

A startling statement, isn't it? But think for a minute or two about your home and you'll realize the truth in it. That bottle of household ammonia under the kitchen sink, the permanent wave lotion on the stool in the bathroom and the soft drink bottle full of gasoline on the back porch are all as dangerous as a container marked POISON—if a child gets to them.

"This is something we warn people about day after day," says Talmadge Balch, Auburn University pesticide specialist. "But I guess it's just like pouring water on a duck's back, because we still have more than 3,000 accidental poisonings in Alabama each year."

Fortunately, only a small number of these are recorded among the more than 1,600 accidental poisonings deaths in the United States each year.

What does the Extension Service specialist suggest to prevent some of these needless accidents?

"Make sure the most common household chemicals such as soaps and detergents, silver and brass polishes, disinfectants and other type cleaners are stored where children can't reach them," he says.

This fact was shown in recent studies conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture comparing food costs of urbanites with those of farm families.

Dorothy Overbey, Extension consumer education specialist, notes that urban households spent an average of $11 per person per week for food, compared to $9 for farm families.

Farm Families Spend Less For Groceries

Farm families aren't growing as much of their own food as they once did, but it's still enough to make a big difference in the weekly grocery bill.

This fact was shown in recent studies conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture comparing food costs of urbanites with those of farm families.

Dorothy Overbey, Extension consumer education specialist, notes that urban households spent an average of $11 per person per week for food, compared to $9 for farm families.

The value of food used at home accounted for about half the difference, the Overbey said, compared to value of food used away from home the other half. Nearly one-third of the one per cent for urban value of the food used at households.

First Woman Governor Takes Office Monday

Lurleen Wallace will become Alabama's first woman governor in what promises to be the biggest show that any state has ever taken place before in the State of Alabama. She becomes Alabama's first, and the nation's third woman governor next Monday.

There'll be 195 bands, 90 floats and an average of four automobiles per county for dignitaries. That's 27 more bands than the total that feted her husband four years ago, but three fewer floats than were present at the George Wallace inauguration.

The day-long ceremonies will begin with a traditional prayer breakfast at 7:45. It will be followed by the parade at 9:30 a. m., an event expected to last five hours. In the parade of county, Tuscaloosa will come first because that's Mrs. Wallace's home county. Barbour is second because that's her husband's home, and Montgomery is third because they both live there now. The rest of the counties will have floats in the order in which they were created.

There'll be no official halt after the speeches and parade are over. Instead, any revelry will occur at private parties, including an invitation - only affair sponsored by members of the Legislature.

The Chief Justice of the Alabama Supreme Court, Ed Livingston, will administer the oath, using the traditional Bible to which Jefferson Davis pledged himself to the Confederacy. Under the "Jeff Davis Bible", there will be another, inscribed: "The Inaugural Bible of Lurleen Burns Wallace, Governor of Alabama, January 16, 1967, wife of George Corley Wallace, Governor of Alabama, 1963 to 1967."

As is customary, the Governor and Governor-elect will attend a Prayer Breakfast at the Jefferson Davis Hotel, then lead the parade up Dexter Avenue to the Capitol where they will review the hours-long parade, followed by the swearing-in ceremony and Mrs. Wallace's address, at 2:30 P. M.

Of the thousands of expected spectators, including former Governor Ross Barnett of Mississippi, the president will be Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Harris of Tuscaloosa, Mrs. Wallace's parents.

Mrs. Wallace will wear for her inauguration a black cashmere suit, a pillbox hat of the same material. She also will wear a single strand of pearls, an anniversary gift from her husband, and diamond eardrums, his Christmas gift this year. Five-year-old Lee will wear her mother's inauguration armband and matching visored vest. Sixteen-year-old Pat, 16, will wear a burgundy suit, and George Jr., will wear a new dark suit. No announcement has been made as to what her husband will wear, nor has her married daughter, Bobbi Jo (Mrs. James Parsons), a University of Alabama student, said what she had decided upon.

Mrs. Wallace has announced that Mrs. Anne Howell, who has been her private secretary since her illness and throughout the campaigns and election, will go to the Capitol with her. Catherine Steiner will continue as secretary at the mansion, which she intends to keep open to tourists seven days a week and available to statewide and regional organizations for teas and receptions. Mrs. Wallace has stated that she will add another woman to her staff to travel with her when she cannot go and to help with some of the many public appearances at which she will be present.

Dismukes Ford Opens New Facilities In Enterprise

Dismukes Ford is announcing their formal opening in their beautiful new building in Enterprise for this week-end. The Ford agency is owned by Herman Dismukes, an Elba native.

After several years in military service, serving three months overseas during World War II, he returned to Elba and accepted the dealership as Kaiser-Frazer agent, after which he went into the automobile business in Troy, for seven and one-half years, after which he was a salesman with a Ford dealer for two and one-half years, then sales manager for two and one-half years prior to his appointment as Ford Dealer in Enterprise in May 1960.

Herman Dismukes was born at New Hope in Coffee County, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Dismukes, now long-time residents of Elba. He is a member of the Baptist Church and is very active in all civic affairs. He is now serving as director of the Chamber of Commerce and is a member of the Enterprise Retail Merchants Association; director of the Enterprise Coffee Club, trustee VFW Club; member American Legion; director of the Elba Ford Dealers Association; and director Alabama Automobile Dealers Association.

Dismukes married the former Madeline Fuller of Elba and they have one son, Herman Jr., known as "Bugs" and one daughter, Lynn. The new Dismukes Ford building is extremely large, very convenient, and has unlimited parking space. It is located on the by-pass out of Enterprise on the Dothan highway.

They are inviting everyone to visit their place during the week-end and to register for the "Free" used car show they are giving away Saturday afternoon. Refreshments will be served during the three day open house.

The Coffee County Board of Registrars will be in session 10 extra days this month, January 17 thru 21 in Enterprise and January 23-27 in Elba.

There will be but one equine group, the Mobili sheriff's posse, but there will be 10 marching bands that she and her husband would not be attending the party the Legislature is having but would receive informally in the governor's office after the inauguration.

It is reported that Mrs. Wallace's health is excellent and that she is grateful that early detection and treatment rid her of the malignancy she suffered last year.

Her first official appearance following the inauguration will be January 17 when she addresses the Legislature and her first trip will be with her husband to attend the inauguration January 19 of Governor Robert McNeil of South Carolina. Her first social engagement is a reception at the mansion for the Alabama Mothers' March of Dimes, which she has long been actively interested.

Then will come autos carrying constitutional officers who will be followed by the 31st (Dixie) Division band and state Army and Air National Guard troops. The Truth About Arthritis

Last of four articles

What are the chances medical science will develop a cure or preventive for arthritis? As we learn more about the disease there is growing optimism.

Even though the cause of rheumatoid arthritis is not known, isn't it possible a cure or preventive might be found before the cause is proved? Yes, the smallpox vaccine was developed long before scientists had a clear understanding of what caused smallpox. But the chances are that a cure or preventive for arthritis will be developed only after researchers learn what causes the disease and how it develops.

A vast amount of research is going on in this direction, supported in great part by The Arthritis Foundation.

Recently Surgeon General William H. Stewart called for "a major effort to combat the crippling and disability caused by arthritis." In government, university and research centers, our total knowledge and understanding of arthritis is increasing at a rapid rate. New orthopedic operations on joints can help prevent some deformities; paraffin wax is now used for heat application; special braces may be used in some cases to prevent joint damage.

And as valuable as pure aspirin is in the treatment of arthritis—it's still prescribed by almost all physicians—the search for more specific agents goes on. Scientists are seeking a "total answer" to the arthritis problem—both a preventive and a cure.

Conservation Department Completes Terracing

Soil Conservation Personnel have completed survey of terrace lines on the Nelson farm in the Pine Level community.

Heavy machinery was used to smooth the land and construct the outlets in preparation for the new system of parallel terraces. The old terraces had been plowed for many years and most of the top soil in the field was in the terrace banks.

Cultivation and wind erosion had built up banks against the hedge rows and water outlets causing the runoff water to go across the field uncontrolled.

The new system will dispose of the excess water in an orderly manner, and adds much to the appearance of the farm.

Local Police Attend FBI Type School

Dillard W. Howell, Special Agent in Charge, Mobile Division, Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced that the FBI conducted 32 police training schools in the south and central Alabama area during 1966. The schools were attended by more than 1500 officers, representing city, county and state law enforcement agencies. Howell states that the FBI conducted more than 5,000 such schools throughout the United States during the fiscal year 1966. Such schools are conducted upon the request of a local law enforcement agency. Instructors are afforded by the FBI at no cost to the requesting department. No tuition, registration or other fees are charged in the FBI schools.

Chief of Police L.F. Dunaway, Elba, and Chief of Police Edward Mordick, Enterprise, advised their departments sponsored a series of FBI-conducted training schools during 1966. These schools pertained to such topics as testifying in court, public relations in law enforcement, interview techniques, stolen automobiles procedures, evidence, fingerprinting, searches and seizures, police records systems and other specialized topics. Chief Mordick added that training is an effective ingredient to an efficient law enforcement program. He said plans are being made for continued training during 1967.

milk is being promoted as the favorite drink to use with snacks. As the advertising points out, milk adds a lot of extra vitality to snacks. This is mighty fine for young folks and older folks too.

Martin is doing a top job as president of the association in Alabama and the dairymen throughout the state appreciate his good work.

PROMISING A few days ago I visited A. L. Herrington, of Route One, Coffee Springs, to take some nematode samples and to also discuss the foundation peanut seed production. While visiting Herrington, I noticed that he has a good crop of young pigs coming along which will soon be ready to market. We expect prices to be considerably higher later than they are now. In fact, I have noticed dozens of growers with good litters of pigs already started on their way to be ready for the improved market.

Coffee County farmers have a good opportunity to make money on hogs and cattle in the immediate years ahead.

GRAZING I believe we have had more good grazing this year than I have noticed in the last five or six years. Some folks have gotten excellent results from grazing. J. J. Jones, our in the Goodman Community, has had good grazing throughout the fall and so far in the winter. This helps to lower the cost of carrying his brood cows through the winter. A little later on Jones will turn under his rye and get set for his 1967 peanut crop. Several dairymen have also come through with excellent grazing this fall.

4-H Dan Presley and Virginia Sanders of the Extension staff have planned and rehearsed an excellent program for the January 4-H Club meetings. The program will emphasize the value of a good study lamp. They will show and also build a recommended study lamp. 4-H Club members are interested in being healthy. In fact, one of the H's stands for health improvement.

LAWNS AND SHRUBBERY Do you want to have a better lawn and prettier shrubbery around your house? The most important way to do this is to simply take a soil sample and send it in to the lab in Auburn. In about ten days you will get complete information on the kind and amount of fertilizer to use. You can get this precise information at a cost of $1.00 for the lab fee and mailing costs which will be about $2.50 to $3.00. Supplies are available at our offices and at farm stores throughout the county.

BACON Several officers and directors of the Coffee County Hog Producers Association are on a Pork Promotion Committee to get people to eat more pork. Ira Allen is chairman of the group and serving with him are Gerald Howell, M. C. Wilkes, E. F. Henderson, and Eugene Farris. You will be hearing more about the promotion in a few weeks. I met with the group some time back and came away with an even bigger appetite for bacon, ham, and sausage and all of the good things that come from pork.

Dassinger Promoted By Mutual Savings

Mutual Savings Life President Redus C. Therefore, it is a real pleasure to reward his untiring efforts, loyalty and enthusiasm with this promotion. I am extremely happy that our Company Board of Directors has so honored him and our South Alabama friends and associates."

Common Colds Should Not Be Ignored

MORE ABOUT COLDS Going to bed for a day early in the course of a cold, to permit recuperation, may prevent many of the serious complications of the common cold. The common cold is the most infectious of all communicable diseases, and yet it is often ignored because of the widespread belief that nothing much can be done about it. "While colds are rarely a direct cause of death, they may precede or incite such serious infections as bacterial pneumonia, meningitis, and sub-acute bacterial endocarditis (a serious heart disease)."

Other more common complications of colds include sinusitis, middle ear infection, tonsillitis, pharyngitis, laryngitis, tracheitis and bronchitis. Infections of the respiratory tract cause more lost time from industry than all other diseases combined. Colds, alone, represent an annual economic loss of two billion dollars. The article stated that doctors believe many head colds are first caused by a virus, with bacteria producing the more unpleasant familiar symptoms that appear as

Bradshaw Is Decorated By Air Force

Airman First Class Hubert W. Bradshaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bradshaw of R.F.D. 2, New Brockton, Alabama, has been decorated with the U. S. Air Force Commendation Medal at Trux Field, Wisconsin. Airman Bradshaw was awarded the medal for meritorious service as an aircraft mechanic at Bien Hoa AB, Vietnam. He was cited for his outstanding professional skill and initiative. He is now at Trux Field as a member of the Air Defense Command which protects the United States against enemy air attack. The airman is a 1963 graduate of New Brockton High School.

ABC Board Destroys 3800 Stills In '66

Enforcement agents of the Alabama Alcohol Beverage Control Board destroyed 3,800 stills in Alabama in 1966. This high rate of destruction continues to average more than 10 stills per day for the third straight year. If these stills had been allowed to operate one year, they would have produced nearly 10 million gallons of "moonshine" at an estimated value of more than $38 million while value of materials and apparatus seized or destroyed had an estimated value of $684,000. This shows the enormous profit motive behind these illegal operations. Enforcement officials in Montgomery estimate that one still remains in operation for each one they destroy.

the infection progresses, however, that many well-treatment of the common cold have proved conclusively that antihistaminic drugs do not prevent, shorten or cure the common cold. Claims to prevent colds by means of oral or other vaccines rest on foundations just as shaky as those of the antihistaminic drugs.

HOME MANAGEMENT

One of the areas of homemaking which nearly every homemaker can improve on is that of keeping up with important papers, insurance policies, and other business matters. If this is a situation which exists in your home, why not make a New Year's resolution by saying that these home business and financial matters will be put in proper order. You can save much confusion and loss of time and money by listing, filing and storing your family papers.

COLD WATER WASH
At a recent club meeting, homemakers were discussing the cold water detergent. I would like to pass along this information to you concerning this detergent.

Most bacteria, including some disease-producing strains, survive on laundry washed in cold water than in either hot or warm water. When detergent with no disinfectant is used, considerably more bacteria survives cold water washes than survives hot water washes.

You can reduce the number of bacteria regardless of water temperature by adding a chlorine or iodine disinfectant to the wash cycle.

POINSETTAS
Many families received poinsettias for Christmas and are enjoying their pretty blooms but there will come a time when the poinsettias will lose their bloom.

After your poinsettia has bloomed, gradually withhold water. The leaves will soon turn yellow and fall. Store the dried-out plant in a cool, 50- to 60-degree dark basement until April or May. Water lightly during this time — just enough to keep the roots and stems from drying out.

When you're ready to revive your plants next spring, prune the stems back to about 6 inches. It is a good idea to report at that time, too. Remove some of the old soil from the roots and report in a mixture that drains well and contains considerable organic matter.

Select a pot that holds the roots without crowding. Water well, and place in a warm, sunny location for renewed growth.

Keep the plant growing actively all summer by regular watering and feeding with a complete soluble fertilizer. Pinch back the new shoots in early August, allowing only a few of the stronger ones to develop.

Before cool weather next fall take the plants inside to a choice location in a south window where they will get all possible light.

MISCONCEPTIONS

If you believe going into debt is sure to make a marriage unhappy, says the National Consumer Finance Association, you hold a common misconception. Actually, the wise use of credit can help prevent the unhappiness that comes from having to do without things that make life easier and more pleasant.

Dr. C. D. McLeod, Coffee County Health Officer, announced recently that immunization clinics will be held at the Coffee County Health Department in Elba, on each Wednesday from 9 A.M. to 4:30 P.M. instead of each Thursday.

ELBA
RESCUE SQUAD
GOAL $ 10,000

The Elba Rescue Squad has been working overtime collecting funds for the much needed rescue equipment and also learning how to use it properly.

Tam Falk shows his amazement at the amount of money already collected by trying to "jump that high" (he counts).

In spite of the money collected Captain Leroy Miller said Wednesday that they were short funds to purchase some necessary equipment and any donation would be appreciated.

The Rescue Squad is concerned with provision as well as rescue. The Rescue Squad served coffee, donuts, milk, juice and other refreshments to the band members and other travelers Monday morning at no charge to the participants.

Applications Are Being Accepted For Tests

State Director Hugh J. Caldwell said recently that material and information needed for the Selective Service College Qualification Tests may now be obtained from any Alabama

Local Board. Caldwell said that applications for these tests must be postmarked not later than February 10, 1967. The examinations will be given on March 11, March 18, and April 8, 1967, at six Alabama sites.

They are: Spring Hill College, Milledgeville, Ga.; Huntingdon College, Montgomery; University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa; Auburn University, Auburn; Athens College, Athens; and Birmingham — Southern College, Birmingham.

Eligible for the Selective Service College Qualification Tests are applicants who, on the testing date, have registered with Selective Service, who intend to request student deferment, and who have not previously taken it. Those who applied before, but failed to take the test, may again apply.

Th Tests are not compulsory, but results of the examinations are used by local boards in considering students in colleges, universities, or other institutions of learning, for deferment. Students making 70 or above on the College Qualification Test can be considered for deferment in regular college study. Those scoring 80 or above, will be eligible for consideration for graduate or professional study.

All information is available at the nearest local board, Caldwell stressed, pointing out that students do not have to contact the local board where they are registered.

Little Theatre Group
To Present Play

The hush, hush goings on at the Little Theatre don't mean that the group are again inspiring our curious minds into wondering. Are the gentle fur thieves practicing their unheard-of methods of taking advantage of our unsuspecting wealthier citizens again?

The lighted windows and locked doors are certainly suspicious evidence that something is soon to happen.

Christmas and New Year holidays have slowed down the practice a bit, but watch out for the end of this month.

The Elba Little Theatre will bring to you something rare for January, "A Breath of Spring", by Peter Coke. Under the direction of Mrs. Ruby Bruce, the players, Sara Brunson, Ann Proctor, Suzie Clark, Sharon Tenbroeck, Clara

Brown, Jim Williams, Welton Boren, and Joe Bruce, hope to entertain you with a spectacular comedy January 27 and 28. Tickets are now on sale by any member of the Little Theatre. Also, if anyone is interested in associate membership, there are still a few seats left.

FARMERS CO-OP MEMBERS TO HOLD MEETING
The stockholders of the Farmers Livestock Co-op of Elba will hold their annual meeting on Friday night, January 20th, at 7 o'clock, at the Elba Court-house.

All stockholders are urged to attend.

DORSEY BOYS MAKE DECEMBER DEAN'S LIST
Steve and Gene Dorsey, sons of Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Dorsey, of Elba, made the Dean's List last month at Lyman Ward Military Academy.

Both boys have been promoted to Private First Class since starting school at the Academy in September.

Lieutenant Colonel E. H. Ramsey, Dean of the Camp Hill, Alabama, school, said in a letter to the Clipper: "We are proud to have such fine boys as these in our school."

TAX COLLECTIONS ARE 90% COMPLETE
According to James L. Sawyer, Tax Collector of Coffee County, tax collections on property in the county are better than 90 per cent complete. Ad valorem taxes become due October 1st and delinquent January 1st each year.

Sawyer urges those who have not done so to visit his office and pay the tax as early as convenient.

The Samford University Baptist Student Union Choir will present a concert of sacred music at the Elba First Baptist Church this Saturday evening, January 21, at 8 o'clock.

The Samford University Baptist Student Union Choir was organized in 1956 on the then Howard College campus and has grown in the past years to become one of the best inspirational singing groups in the state.

The choir is unique in that it is strictly a volunteer group of Christian college young people. The choir chooses its own members by audition each year, and the director and officers are chosen by the popular vote of the choir members. The sponsor for the BSU Choir is Dr. Sigurd Bryan, a Professor in the Bible and Religion Department of the University.

The Baptist Student Union Choir has toured from Miami to Cincinnati and from Birmingham to the East Coast giving concerts of sacred music. The choir members plan the complete tour and finance the cost of the tour, along with offerings taken at the various churches where they sing. Their main emphasis is to praise the name of God through the means of music, and they accomplish this with a spirit which unites the choir in song.

The public is cordially invited to share this hour of inspiring music presented by these outstanding young people.
